Gen. Greenville M. Dodge showed his loyalty to Norwich University, of which he was a distinguished graduate and trustee, by a bequest of $50,000 to the institution. The endowment of Norwich has not been large and this addition will do much to strengthen the institution and to increase the courage of its alumni and friends.

The Congregationalist, the oldest religious paper in the United States and long one of ablest, celebrates its one hundredth anniversary with a special issue. Few papers or magazines in the country are more interesting or valuable. The anniversary number contains a letter from Theodore Roosevelt of special interest to Vermont readers. "The Church certainly need not lose its influence. Take for example one of my close friends, the Rev. Frazer Metzger, who has a church at Randolph, Vermont. Under his guidance the church keeps its full influence in his locality as a living force for righteousness."

"URGENT REPRESENTATIONS."

Seventeen American citizens taken from a train in Mexico, stripped of their clothing, lined up, and shot! What is to be done? The word from Washington is that "urgent representations will be made to Carranza to increase his efforts to capture Villa or destroy his forces." For shame! The American flag should be the protection of the American citizen. It has been scorned and trampled in Mexican dust for too long already. But what can Wilson do? He has announced himself "to proud to fight" and every cut-throat south of the Rio Grand is as sure as the Kaiser that his "urgent representations" will go on forever, and that there will never be anything back of them. The safety of American lives as well as the preservation of American honor demand the repudiation of Woodrow Wilson by the manhood of this nation at the first opportunity. Thank God Vermont did not vote for him!

COL. LISLEY'S RETIREMENT.

The retirement of Col. S. A. Lisle as President of the National Bank of Middlebury should not be allowed to pass without appreciation of his valuable services in that position. His name has been a guarantee of sound financial methods which has inspired confidence and increased the prestige of the Middlebury bank among Vermont financial institutions. Under his leadership the bank has opened a savings department, which was greatly needed in this community, and erected the handsome and convenient building it now occupies. Both of these steps have increased the usefulness and popularity of the bank and both will remain a monument to the courage and far-sightedness of Col. Lisle. In the election of Mr. Charles E. Pinney as his successor the bank has a President whose ability and integrity have been proved through a period of service which has distinguished him among the banking officers of the State. A sound and conservative banker, Mr. Pinney may be depended upon to conduct the affairs of the bank in a manner to continue the confidence which the people of Addison County have always reposed in their largest and strongest financial institution.

B. W. ESTEY'S RECORD TRIP.

The Christmas number of the Ford Times, the sprightly magazine devoted to the Ford automobile, contains a page in description and illustration of the trip over the Lincoln-Warren road taken by Mr. B. W. Estey of Bristol in his Ford car last October. The story of the record climb is told in Mr. Estey's own words and there is a good picture of the car at the summit of the pass.

ELECTED LIBRARY PRESIDENT.

Charles H. Amsden was elected President of the Mercantile Library Association of Boston at the annual meeting of the association last Saturday. Mr. Amsden is an official of the United States Treasury Department and is located at Boston. He has many friends in this vicinity, where he has frequently visited, and Mrs. Amsden is a native of Ripton. The Mercantile Library of Boston, of which Mr. Amsden is now President, is one of the old and famous libraries of the country.

"THE SENATOR" AT OPERA HOUSE.

The story of "The Senator," which is coming to the opera house on January 18, as the next release on the Equitable program, is a wonderful presentation of official and social life in Washington, filmed from Sydney Rosenfeld's play of the same name, with Charles J. Ross in the star part of Senator Rivers, the character made famous on the legitimate stage by William H. Crane. The pictured story far exceeds the stage version in realism and strength, and is full of striking situations and beautiful as well as stirring scenes. Intrigue, ambition, love, revenge, romance, and the hidden but none the less powerful motives which move the currents of life in the nation's capital, are interwoven in a screen drama in which the appeal to the heart's emotions is as potent as the desire to see justice triumphant.—adv.

Baby McDonald and Her Fresh Air House.

A CITY OUTDOOR BABY.

The charming little lady in the picture is Miss Margaret Isabel McDonald, who has reached the age of eight months. Baby McDonald lives in New York city in an apartment. When this little mite of humanity came to New York her wise parents decided that she should have the benefits of a fresh air existence. At first her father proposed that she spend her outdoor hours on the fire escape, but the fire laws of the city forbid placing any obstruction on fire escapes. So then he decided to build the little house here shown and suspend it from a front window overlooking Amsterdam avenue. And so the house was built and suspended on iron brackets, and in this snug retreat the baby spends most of her time. Underneath her home is a busy market, and Margaret, it she cares to look, can see hundreds of people every day. Meantime her outdoor life has agreed with the baby and she is the picture of health and good nature as she views the world from her safe and snug retreat above the busy street.

"The Sea and Her Children."

The players in this game seat them selves in a circle, one of the number remaining in the center to represent the sea. Each player takes the name of some fish, and the sea walks around the circle and calls each person by the name he has adopted.

As he is called he must rise and follow the sea. When all have left they seats the sea begins to run about crying, "The sea is troubled." Suddenly she seats herself, and all her companions must try to do the same, but there is one seat less, so one player is left out, who becomes the sea.

No player must seat himself until the sea has taken a chair, and he can create some fun by running about and pretending he is about to seat himself. Any player seating himself before the sea must pay a forfeit.

Feeding Pussy at the Table.

When we sit down to eat our meals I always want to pout.
When mother says, as puss she spies,
"Go put that old cat out."

For pussy knows it's time to eat;
She's hungry as can be;
Reproachfully she sits and looks
Through the screen door at me.

But sometimes she sneaks in again
And scratches on my legs,
And I slip bones and bites to her,
Because so cute she begs.

My mother says the table is
No place for cats to dine,
But underneath, close by my chair,
Just suits my kitty fine.

—Philadelphia Record.

A Trick Game.

In this game all the players sit in circle and one who knows the game takes a pair of scissors and passes them to his neighbor on the left, saying, "pass these scissors crossed (and at the same time crosses his feet). The next player takes the scissors and says, 'received these scissors crossed and pass them uncrossed.' He is supposed to do the same with his feet as with the scissors. Any one who does not cate on to it must give a forfeit. This is great fun as very few see it for a long time.

Charade.

My whole has four letters with vowel but one.
You have it. I have it, when all's said and done.
Behold me, the three letters left will express
What we all have or had, some more an some less.
Take my head off again and my word never doubt
When I say, if you guess it, you'll find it out.
Answer—Skin, kin, in.

Praise For Boy Scouts.

It is fine to have the boys of the country organized for the purposes the boy scouts represent, and whenever I see a group of them I am proud of their manliness and feel cheered by the knowledge of what their organization represents.—President Wilson.

VERMONT DAIRY FARMING.

Vermont averages to raise nearly as much per acre, if not quite, corn, oats, potatoes and wheat as any state in the union and there is not nearly the noise made about it as elsewhere. In fact, there is not enough made of Vermont's agricultural possibilities.

Vermont, with its hilly contour, cannot compete with the broad acres of the west in supplying grain for the world. But nature is compensating. Read this table:

$1,000 of wheat reduces fertility.....	$240 00
1,000 of cattle reduces fertility.....	85 00
1,000 of horses reduces fertility.....	35 00
1,000 of butter reduces fertility.....	1 25

Vermont has the best butter grass in the country. As shown above it takes less out of the farm to "raise" butter than anything else. Furthermore, grain crops are "once a year money crops." How different with dairying. Fertility of the farm is maintained more; money comes the year round and the marketing problem is reduced.

It is the steady business that pays. Steady, systematic money saving is the surest, best paying and, best of all, the systematic savings habit is the easiest way to prepare for the rainy day.
